Our flowers

Hello! I'm Brigid Riley, the face behind Fernwood Flowers.

Our signature style is informal and garden-gathered and we strive to use seasonal irish flowers and foliage wherever possible.

During the irish growing season (May-Oct) we mix flowers from our own cutting garden with premium blooms imported from Holland. This gives us the opportunity to use some more delicate flowers in our wedding work that wouldn't hold up to being transported. There's really nothing like the delicate scent of a sweetpea or the nodding head of a freshly cut cosmos in a Summer wedding bouquet!

Our flowers are mostly grown from seed, in stages beginning in January each year. We sow seeds every month until September- those seeds will bloom the following Spring.

Please don't be afraid to get in touch early, we take bookings up to 2 years prior to your wedding date and our book does fill quickly!

I look forward to hearing from you!

Brigid xoxo

Wearable flowers- Buttonholes/Corsages/Flowercrowns

Think of the gent's buttonhole as a "pinch" of flowers from the bride's bouquet using a variety of fresh and dried botanicals, seedheads and grasses arranged with a feature flower.

Ladies corsages are a little larger and can be worn pinned to their dress/jacket or on their wrist.

Delivery, set up & removal

Delivery and set up costs are not included in the cost of the flowers.

We will deliver all your flowers on the morning of your wedding and have everything set and ready to go a minimum of an hour prior to your ceremony.

We always recommend you try to get double use from your flowers wherever you can. For example, the candle lighting arrangement is often reused on the top table and pew ends can sometimes be repurposed for table centrepieces.

For full service weddings we will deliver and set up and will come back to move your flowers between the ceremony and reception, also returning the following morning to collect any rental items.

The average delivery and set up fee for a full service wedding is €300, a delivery-only option starts at €75
