A NOTE ON SUSTAINABILITY

Throughout the irish growing season we add some of our own-grown flowers to the imported blooms that we source direct from the flower auctions in Holland. Unfortunately we don't have the means to use 100% irish- grown flowers due to lots of constraints, one being the unpredictable irish climate. However, it's always a good idea to-keep in mind that during the winter, when flowers are scarce in the Northern Hemisphere, the imported flowers are either being grown in heated greenhouses in Holland or flown great distances from warmer climates. We are happy to source these flowers for you but in the interest of sustainability and the environment, we feel it's important to be transparent from where those flowers have originated. We can also offer suggestions for foliage-heavy designs on request, using all irish-grown foliage year round.

WINTER

January

We don't take any weddings in January. This month is spent reflecting on the previous year, replying to the many enquiries that come in over the Christmas period and planning for the year ahead.
